

Mariam Akinlolu

Mariam Akinlolu obtained her BTech. in Project Management from Bells University of Technology and a Master of Construction from the Cape Peninsula University of Technology, South Africa. She holds a PhD in Construction Management from the University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa.

She is a Lecturer in the School of Built Environment at London Metropolitan University as well as Research Associate at Nelson Mandela University. Mariam has presented papers at conferences locally and abroad, published in peer-reviewed journals; written chapters in books and edited several book collections.

She has been involved in international funded projects in the areas of sustainable built environment education, waste management, construction health and safety and circular economy. Her research interests are engineering education, gender issues in construction, sustainability and construction health and safety.